In our last message, we referred to on-line information from EPA to assist Stakeholders investigating and cleaning up brownfields, including resources and guidelines for site investigation and cleanup with an emphasis on innovative technologies. If you haven't looked at this web site yet, it's at <http://www.clu-in.org/>, and it's not just for brownfield sites. It describes programs, organizations, publications and other tools for federal and state personnel, consulting engineers, technology developers and vendors, remediation contractors, researchers, community groups, and individual citizens.
